

Words to avoid in proposals

Words to avoid in proposals
Crutch words – used when writers don't understand what to say We understand...	To say "we understand your requirements" obfuscates any understanding and is, by definition, an unsubstantiated claim. On the other hand, if you say something insightful about how you will fulfill the requirements, the reader will see that the bidder understands the requirements. Understanding should be demonstrated, not claimed.
Leverage our experience...	"Leverage" is a word that some writers use when they know there is an advantage to be gained, but they don't know how to do it. Explain "how" rather than infer.
Boasting words – these exaggerate or overstate facts, causing loss of credibility
State-of-the-art	This is overused and is probably not credible.
The right choice	Prove it.
Uniquely qualified, unique, very unique	Prove it.
Best of breed/class	Prove it.
Premier, world-class, world-renowned	Can't be proven. Using it is wasting the evaluators' attention.
Industry best practices, industry standard	Overused, unless recognized as such by an independent 3rd party.
Leading company, leading edge, leading provider, industry leader, pioneers, cutting edge, etc.	Overused and not believable. Don't damage your credibility by using it.
Vague, useless words – these provide little value to the reader
We are committed	Customers don't want your commitment, they want results.
We are quality focused	This is another way of stating your intentions. Instead of focusing on quality, deliver it.

Words to avoid in proposals

Words to avoid in proposals
We value	Instead of valuing it, deliver it.
Our mission is to	This is just another way of stating your intention.
Dedicated to	Your dedication is not relevant to whether you have delivered or not.
Top-quality	Is there any other kind?
Full service	What exactly does that mean and is it credible?
Comprehensive	As opposed to?
Fastest growing	Your ability to grow rapidly may not be a selling point to your customer.
Trustworthy	I don't know about you, but when I hear that, I tend to run the other way.
Customer first	This is not believable. Everyone knows there are limits to what you will do for your customers. Don't strain your credibility.
Weak words – these weaken the bidder's argument and cause doubt in the minds of evaluators
Don't use	Use
We believe, think, or feel	Who cares? The customer doesn't care what you think. Take whatever you were about to say, turn it into a positive action, and state the benefits to the customer.
We will strive, try, or attempt	Customers don't want you to try, they want you to deliver.
We would be honored	This is just another way of saying how you feel and talking about yourself instead of making it about the customer.
We are pleased to submit	Of course you are! Does that phrase do anything other than waste the evaluators' time and attention?
We are committed	Customers don't want your commitment, they want results.

Words to avoid in proposals

Words to avoid in proposals
Our highest priority	This is like saying it's your greatest intention.
We can provide	Either you provide it, or you don't.
Our mission is to	This is just another way of stating your intention.
We desire your business	Of course you do! But, your proposal should not be about your needs, it should be about the customer's needs.
We intend to	Either you do it, or you don't. Who cares what your intentions are.
We are devoted to	This is just another way of saying you intend to.
We hope	That's like saying you intend to, but you're not sure you'll be able to.
Phrases with hidden verbs – replace with action verbs
Don't use	Use
Arrived at the conclusion Came to an agreement	Concluded Agreed
Gave a demonstration Gave an explanation	Demonstrated Explained
Has a requirement for	Requires
Has a need for	Needs
Held a meeting	Met
Made a payment	Paid
Performed an analysis of	Analyzed Redundant Words – simplify to write concisely
Don't use	Use
6-month period	6 months a number of	several able to	can accordingly	so
acquainted with	know acted as	was

Words to avoid in proposals

Words to avoid in proposals advance planning	planning advance reservations	reservations advance warning	warning capable of	can close proximity	proximity consensus of opinion	consensus consequently	so deteriorate in quality	deteriorate discontinue	stop
each and every	each end result	result estimated roughly at	estimated at exact same	same filled to capacity	filled first and foremost	first, foremost for backup purposes	for backup for the purpose of	for, to functioned as	was furthermore	then give an affirmative answer to	say yes to, agree to good advantage	advantage if and when	if in a teaching situation	in teaching in accordance with	by in addition	also in an effort to	to in as much as	since, because in favor of	for, to in order to	to issue a reminder	remind join together	join

Words to avoid in proposals

Words to avoid in proposals
new innovation	innovation on the basis of	by on the grounds that	because, since past experience	experience past history	history
plan ahead	plan
prior to	before reason is because	reason is regular routine	routine responsible for managing	managed, manages utilize	use
with a view to	to with reference to	about (or leave out) with regard to	about (or leave out) with the result that	so that Unnecessary qualifiers – avoid these or if used, substantiate your assertions actually	now and again
all	obviously always	occasionally
best	of course
certainly	quite comparatively	rather definitely	relatively exactly	respectively
finest	sharpest
heaviest	some
I guess	somewhat
I know	sort of
I think	specific most	utterly

Words to avoid in proposals

Words to avoid in proposals needless to say	very never	wholly none	worst
Needlessly long words – replaced with short, simple words
Long word	Replacement ascertain	learn
encompass	include
endeavor	try
enumerate	list fabricate	make fluctuate	vary
illustrate	show
indispensable	vital
initiate	start
modification	change
recapitulate	review
reproduction	copy
subsequent	after substantial	large
termination	end
utilization	use
Slang words – use in everyday speaking, but not in proposals
Hit the ground running	Well-seasoned managers Legal words – if used, make sure you intend to comply with the legal definition
Ensure	Guarantee