

FutureView, Gaining Perspective on the Rising Waves Of Change

Brief Synopsis:

“There will be no New Normal. We are now dealing with a world that is going to be ferocious. The volatilities, the turbulence, the uncertainties of the world will probably define the second half of my life.”
– Jim Collins

We are Living in a Dynamic Moment.

For most of history, Rip Van Winkle could take his twenty-year nap and not miss much. But that is not true today. Can you imagine showing up for work tomorrow after a twenty-year nap? What if you’d been out for fifty years? Can you imagine how disoriented people would be if we plucked them, say, off a Detroit assembly line back in the mid-60s, and dropped them in Los Angeles today? What would shock them the most: the collapse of the Soviet Union? Lady Gaga? Bottled water? WiFi?

In FutureView, author, Mike Woodruff, examines the major forces shaping the future and how they will likely impact our lives, families and communities, so we can begin to prepare for the tumultuous times ahead.
